Over a river there is a rope.
Normally seabirds are perched on it.
Today there were a few cormorants
and lots of sea gulls.

Grandma and Papa, Mommy, Daddy, Brignteen
There is a whole swarm of black ducks.

Brignteen Mommy, Daddy, Grandma
and Papa.

There are hundreds of snow geese
hiding in the grass.

Brignteen, Mommy, Daddy, Grandma, Papa
Lots of red winged black birds hiding in the under brush.

There are a couple of mallards
in some brown vegetation.

Brignteen Mommy, Daddy, Grandma, and Papa
There is a clearing here. Through it we can see at least 100 egrets of assorted sizes. The identified kinds are snowy and great.

Brigenteen Mommy, Daddy, Grandma and Papa
There are assorted pectoral and yellowlegs sandpipers. They are on a mud flat.

Brigenteen Mommy, Daddy, Grandma and Papa
There is a black backed gull floating on the marsh. At first I mistook it for a bald eagle.

Brigenteen Mommy, Daddy, Grandma and Papa
There is a great blue heron's stalking on the open marsh.

Brigenteen Mommy, Daddy, Grandma and Papa
There are Canadageese flying and looking for food.

There is a humongous flock of terns flying and diving for little silver fish.

Right above our car is a marsh hawk. We can tell it is one by its white rump and curved beak.

There is a pair of red tails high above.

The End
